New study: Technology-based advising promote equity in CTE

[Image]

Oct. 8-9, 2020

This two-day conference will feature sessions exploring the latest CTE research and its implications for policymakers and practitioners.

[Image]

October 9, 2020

[Image]

The CTE Research Network Practitioner Training Modules: Free Resources to Better Understand and Use CTE Data and Research

We will preview our Practitioner Training Modules, an interactive online training experience that is designed to equip CTE policymakers and practitioners with the tools and knowledge to better understand and use CTE data and research.

[Image]

October 9, 2020

[Image]

The evidence-based advice from our new series on using data partners with experienced practitioners to revise and improve CTE policies and programs.

[Image]

October 8, 2020

[Image]

The Interactive Career Assessment and Planning System (iCAPS) is a highly flexible and scalable web-based advising tool that can be deployed in a school or district to support students in making better informed decisions about career and educational planning.

[Image]

October 8, 2020

[Image]

This year’s CTE Best Practices and Innovations Conference will bring policymakers, practitioners, researchers, and other stakeholders together to identify strategies and opportunities that states can use to establish and fund CTE research partnerships.

[Image]